

Summary of relevant skills and experiences

Chiara Galligani is Assistant Professor of Legal History at the University of Pisa, Department of Law, where she has been teaching assistant since the end of 2011. She holds a five-year master's degree (with honors) from the University of Pisa (Legal History), a Ph.D in History and Sociology of Modernity (University of Pisa).

During her experience, she has been a member of the ordinary and extraordinary exam sessions and she has been carried out tutoring activities for undergraduates, along with seminarial activities in the courses of Legal History.

She has been working as a lawyer from 2004 to 2011, as a member of the Bar of Pisa. She is author of publications on various topics on Legal History, also with an interdisciplinary perspective.